About Ali Nasir

Hello!

My name is Ali Nasir, I born in karachi and raised in Lahore a beautiful city of Pakistan. I got my primary education major in Science (Bio, Chemistry, Physics, and Mathematics). But later I changed my field to computer science due to interest in technology.

Though my education background shows my relation with the field of computer science but I am also an author and an artist. It was revealed during MSC Internet Engineering (University of East London) that I can write as good as I can analyse and develop an application. I have also published few scientific papers and journals for popular electronic sources like ACM.

Art was my passion since childhood and I used to draw small drawings and paintings and always get appreciated from the school staff. Unfortunately due to commitment to my studies I couldn't gave much time to my passion. However I do some painting whenever I got time. I have also included some of my pencil sketches in my gallery.

During my professional carrier I worked on all phases of software development life cycle. I have been working as an analyst then developer/programmer and even designer and tester. I believe in having a goal in life is very important, instead of running towards something which we don't know.

Being in touch with the web application analysis, development, deployment and maintenance I decided to change the nature of my work in order to be consistent with the technology. So I got more focused on Search Engine Optimization and Marketing analysis of websites and what optimization and linking strategies need to be followed in order to achieve high ranking on google, yahoo, msn and major search engines.
